

USPS-FY19-9 ROADMAP TO FISCAL YEAR 2019 ANNUAL COMPLIANCE REPORT

Purpose: The purpose of this roadmap is to help readers navigate the costs, revenues, prices, and service materials presented to the Postal Regulatory Commission (PRC) by the Postal Service as its FY 2019 Annual Compliance Report (ACR) in response to 39 U.S.C. § 3652.

Specifically, the roadmap briefly describes the purpose of each folder, the inputs to and outputs from that folder, and any changes in methodology associated with that folder. The intent is to allow the reader to understand the flow of information building to the summary data identified in the statute. The roadmap also includes a section responding to Commission Rule 3050.12 which covers data obsolescence.

Predecessor: The predecessor folder is USPS-FY18-9.

Organization: USPS-FY19-9 contains two pdf files – this Preface, and the Roadmap Document. This Preface includes two relatively short sections. The intent of the first Preface section is to provide a quick guide regarding the content and location of information provided in response to recent Commission directives. The second Preface section contains a convenient table that catalogues the petitions to consider changes in analytical principles filed by the Postal Service that are still pending or were filed after the filing of the 2018 ACR.

The Roadmap Document itself is organized into three relatively longer sections. Section I presents a brief description of each set of folder materials. As applicable, this description includes an indication of the sources of the inputs used and an indication of the downstream folder materials that make use of the outputs. Section II identifies any material changes in methodology incorporated into preparation of the associated data. Section III presents information responsive to Commission Rule 3050.12 on data obsolescence. For sections I and II, these materials are further divided into public and non-public groupings. Materials in the public version are labeled as “USPS-FY19-X.” Materials in the non-public version are labeled as “USPS-FY19-NPX.” The “NP” denotes non-public materials. This roadmap, however, includes folder descriptions and the methodological changes related to both public and non-public materials.

The Roadmap Document is not intended to replace the ACR folder prefaces. The prefaces contain detailed folder information not necessarily found in this document.

COMMISSION DIRECTIVES

Each year, the Commission solicits new information to be submitted with the ACR. In some instances, these directives take the form of new rules incorporated into the Code of Federal Regulations. More frequently, they are included as part of the previous year's ACD, or perhaps stated in a separate Order issued as part of some other proceeding, such as a rate, mail classification, or rulemaking docket. For purposes of the FY 2019 ACR, presented here is an attempt to list these new requests comprehensively, indicate where the requests were stated, and further indicate where within the body of ACR material the responsive information has been submitted. In general, material submitted in previous years is not included in this list, but that material usually can be found in the same location where it was presented in any previous years.

Ad Hoc Directives Roadmap

Over the years, the Commission has occasionally prescribed filing requirements for future ACRs in ACDs, or in various Orders in various dockets, without formally amending the Code of Federal Regulations to address those topics. In some instances, the directives continue to apply even beyond the first reporting year in which a response was required. With respect to such continuing ad hoc directives, in those instances in which Postal Service views its possible failure to establish clarity as creating the potential for uncertainty or confusion, below are expressly listed certain of those requests, the contexts in which they were presented, and the location of the requested information in the current ACR. Not surprisingly, these locations generally correspond to the location where the comparable information was provided in previous years.
